

Trouble At The Top

This excellent series follows up on the lost fortunes of Mark Goldberg, who ploughed his amassed £40 million into Crystal Palace Football Club and went bankrupt.

Here, he plans to start up a new digital television station, TV Jobshop, while knowing nothing about television.

Goldberg began on a flower stall and made his money through recruitment. He's a salesman at heart, down-to-earth, committed, unerringly optimistic (to camera, at least) and hugely likeable.

You will want him to succeed, and when progress begins to look shaky, this programme digs in its hooks.